Types of Homeowners Insurance

Homeowners Insurance is a “package” policy that covers both property and liability claims. Property claims are made when loss or damage occurs to your home or personal possessions. This coverage extends to possessions that you carry for personal use when you travel. Liability claims arise when someone else suffers a bodily injury or damage to their property because of something you did or did not do. Liability claims may result in a lawsuit against you.

There are six basic types of homeowners coverage that are designed to provide varying amounts of protection. Different insurance companies may give them different titles, but the perils they insure are basically the same. Homeowners policies do not cover damage due to floods.

THE BASIC FORM

The Basic Form protects your home and personal property such as furniture, carpeting and personal belongings. The policy covers damage due to fire or lightning, removal of property endangered by peril, windstorm or hail, vandalism or malicious mischief, theft, damage from vehicles and aircraft, glass breakage, and comprehensive liability.

THE BROAD FORM

Along with benefits provided by the Basic Form, the Broad Form insures your home and personal property against building collapse, freezing of or accidental discharge of water or steam from within plumbing, heating/air conditioning systems, domestic appliances, falling objects, weight of ice, snow or sleet, and rupture or bursting of hot water heating systems. It also provides comprehensive personal liability coverage.

THE SPECIAL FORM

The Special Form covers your home against “all risks” except for certain specified exclusions, such as earthquakes. This policy covers other structures (such as a garage) and all perils covered in the Broad Form, damage to or loss of personal property, and comprehensive liability.

THE TENANTS BROAD FORM

The Tenants Policy is a Broad Form policy that provides coverage for personal property only. This policy provides no coverage for the dwelling.

THE COMPREHENSIVE FORM

The Comprehensive Form insures a dwelling and personal property against all risks except certain specified perils, such as earthquakes. This is often the most expensive homeowners policy because it covers so many potential losses.

THE SPECIAL CONDOMINIUM FORM

Special Condominium coverage is designed for condominium unit owners and is not presently offered by all insurance companies. It provides the basic coverage offered in the Tenants Broad Form and provides special protection needed by owners of condominium units, such as improvements. It insures only the interior of the dwelling, not the structure itself.

When deciding which form is right for you, be aware that some properties and perils are excluded from most homeowners policies. Animals, birds, fish, automobiles and business property that are away from the covered premises are not covered by most homeowners policies. Loss and damage caused by flood, surface water, water that backs up through sewers or drains, earth movement, nuclear damage, and war are not covered. In some instances you can purchase additional coverage for excluded items.

Personal liability and medical payments do not apply to operation or ownership of any aircraft, automobile, recreational motor vehicle, water craft powered by more than a 50-horsepower motor, or to bodily injury or physical damage caused by an intentional act of the insured.

Check with your producer to find out if there is a named-storm or hurricane deductible written into your policy. For example, a 2% named-storm or hurricane deductible would require you to pay up to 2% of the insured value of your home instead of the usual deductible you pay when you have other types of losses. When considering the purchase of a policy, keep in mind that most companies will suspend the sale of insurance once a hurricane or tropical storm is approaching.

Other Important Insurance

FLOOD INSURANCE

Because homeowners policies in Louisiana do not provide coverage for damage due to floods, it is important to look into getting a separate flood insurance policy, no matter where you live. Ask your producer if your insurance provider offers flood insurance policies that will provide coverage for your house and its contents, or contact the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) at 877-336-2627 or visit www.floodsmart.gov.

The federal government is responsible for the regulation and distribution of flood insurance through FEMA.

The NFIP does not provide coverage in excess of $250,000 for your house and $100,000 for its contents. If you need more coverage, you can purchase excess flood insurance through private insurers. Check with your producer or insurance company for more information.

Don't wait until a storm is coming to purchase flood insurance. It may take 30 days after purchase for a flood insurance policy to go into effect.

THE LOUISIANA CITIZENS PROPERTY INSURANCE CORPORATION

The Louisiana Citizens Property Insurance Corporation was created by the Legislature in 2003 to operate the high-risk property insurance pool.

Citizens serves as the insurer of last resort for consumers who are unable to obtain property insurance in the regular insurance market.

Some homeowners policies, especially for property along the coast, exclude coverage for wind and hail damage.

Citizens offers this type of supplemental coverage, along with other basic property insurance. Any Louisiana licensed property and casualty producer can place coverage with Citizens on your behalf.

HOME SHARING RENTAL INSURANCE

Home sharing or peer-to-peer rental companies, such as Vrbo or Airbnb, let people rent a room or an entire home, usually through a website or mobile app. Homeowners insurance is not designed to cover most business uses of your home. If you are earning money from renting your home through a peer-to-peer company, the insurance company may consider that business use, and you may not be covered for damage to your home, damage to your neighbor's home caused by your renter, or any medical bills or injuries incurred by your renters or their guests while they are on your property.

Before you list your home for rent, ask your insurance agent what your policy covers.

VALUABLE ITEMS COVERAGE

Most policies limit the amount of reimbursement for valuable items, such as jewelry, furs, silverware, guns, antiques, fine art and computer equipment. If you have particularly valuable items in these categories, you may need to purchase additional coverage. This type of coverage is usually inexpensive and based on the value of the item being insured. Contact your insurance company or producer for more information.

RENTERS INSURANCE

Many renters do not consider their insurance needs because they believe only “home owners” need insurance. However, renters need protection for their personal possessions and from liability.

Some truths to remember about renters insurance:

- Your personal belongings are not protected by the landlord’s insurance. Property owners insurance covers the actual building and any contents belonging to the landlord, but seldom covers the tenant’s possessions.
- Renters insurance is not very expensive. Renters insurance is typically available for as little as $100 a year.
- Renters who live on the ground floor should also consider buying flood insurance.
- Your landlord may not be liable if someone is injured within your rented residence. You should check your renter’s agreement to see if you will be held liable for injury or property damage that occurs in your residence; if so, you should consider renters insurance.
- Renters policies normally pay only the actual cash value of your losses, but replacement coverage is available.
- Although it is best if all roommates are on the same policy, it is possible for each to purchase his or her own coverage. If you do decide to get insurance alone, only you will receive the security of coverage.

BUSINESS PROPERTY INSURANCE

If you operate a business out of your home, you should consider purchasing a separate business insurance policy. Purchasing a business insurance policy will protect your business property and your personal liability if someone is injured in your home due to business activities.

For example, if you do not have business property insurance and your house is burglarized, your homeowners policy will only pay a limited amount for the replacement of your business property. Also, if someone is injured as a result of your business activity, you could be held liable to pay their medical bills and make restitution if you are sued.

PERSONAL UMBRELLA OR EXCESS LIABILITY COVERAGE

A personal liability, or umbrella, policy pays liability limits above those you can get on your homeowners or other basic liability policy.

If you are thinking of buying a personal liability policy, begin by finding out the maximum amount of personal liability your homeowners policy provides. Make sure you coordinate the liability limits so that the umbrella policy covers any liability claim in excess of the amount your basic policy will pay, up to the maximum limits of the policy.

After the Policy is Purchased

TAKING INVENTORY OF YOUR HOME

After you have purchased your homeowners policy, you need to keep a copy in a fireproof/water tight box or in a safe place away from home, such as a safety deposit box. It is also important to make a list of the possessions covered under your policy. It is easier to do an inventory of your home now rather than trying to remember a lifetime worth of purchases after a loss. Make sure to list any valuable items, their serial numbers, the method of acquisition (purchased, inherited or received as a gift), date purchased, and price or approximate value. This list should include furniture, appliances, carpeting, jewelry, artwork, toys and the contents of your closets, cabinets and drawers. Attach receipts if possible.

It is also a good idea to take photographs or videos of the outside of your home, as well as your personal property inside your home. Include in your video a verbal description of major assets, including their value. Keep your inventory list and photos/videos in a secure place with your policy and store copies away from the premises.

FILING A CLAIM

When you call your insurance company or producer about your claim, keep a record of the conversation, including the person's name and the date and time of the call. The company will then submit a loss form and an adjuster will be assigned to your claim. If you are unable to stay in your home, let your insurance company or producer know where you can be reached.

In many cases, you may need to make temporary repairs to prevent further damage to your property from the weather. This would include boarding up windows and placing plastic over the roof if it is leaking. If you make temporary repairs, keep a list of all work done and save receipts for all materials used. Do not sign any contracts or work orders until you have spoken with your insurance company.

WORKING WITH THE ADJUSTER

The adjuster will contact you to make arrangements to inspect your property. Be present when the adjuster comes and ask for identification. Have your insurance policy, your list of possessions, and any photos or videos ready when the adjuster arrives. This will make the adjuster's job easier and help settle your claim sooner.

The adjuster will then make a repair estimate of the damage to your home and property. If you cannot come to an agreement with the adjuster over what needs to be repaired or replaced, do not accept an unfair settlement. Contact your insurance company or call the Department of Insurance at 1-800-259-5300.

FIGURING OUT THE COSTS

The settlement amount the insurance company offers differs with each situation. However, it helps to know the two basic ways to value your property.

- Actual Cash Value - the replacement cost of the item minus depreciation. For example, if a new television set costs $700 and your 5-year-old television set is damaged in a fire, you may end up receiving only $350 because of depreciation of your television's value over time.

- Replacement Coverage - the cost of replacing an item without deducting for depreciation. For example, if the current cost of a television similar to the one you bought seven years ago is $700, you will receive the full $700. Most policies require you to actually replace the item in order to receive full reimbursement.

Check your policy to see which kind of coverage you currently have. If you have actual cash value and would prefer replacement coverage, it may be added to your policy for an increase in your premium.

CANCELLATION BY THE COMPANY

After you have received your policy, you should read your cancellation provisions, as they may be more complicated than you think. It is important to understand when and how the company can or cannot cancel or refuse to renew your policy.

First, if your insurance company decides it wants to cancel or not renew your policy, you have the right to know why. If you make a written request for the reason of cancellation, the company must respond within a reasonable period of time and specify in writing the reasons for the cancellation or refusal to renew.

You should be aware that your insurance company cannot cancel, refuse to renew or increase the amount of the premium on your homeowners policy based solely on a loss caused by an “Act of God.” An “Act of God” is defined as an incident due directly to natural causes and exclusively without human intervention.

Shopping Tips

When shopping for homeowners insurance, keep these basic tips in mind:

- Don't take risks with your home. You should use the same care in shopping for your homeowners insurance as you do when shopping for your home. After a storm or fire, you don't want to hear that your insurance company is not financially stable enough to cover your claim or you don't have the proper coverage in the right amounts.
- Shop till you drop. Don't just buy the cheapest policy you can find. Consider other factors such as the credibility of the company.
- Remember deductibles. Homeowners policies in Louisiana carry a basic deductible depending upon the insurance company. A higher deductible means higher out-of-pocket expense in the event of a loss. Depending on the company, your policy may have a separate hurricane, named-storm or wind and hail deductible.
- Buy only what you need. Talk to your producer to determine the current value of your home using replacement cost estimates or appraisals. It is recommended to insure your home for the full replacement value so in the event of a total loss, the amount you should receive on your claim will equal the cost to rebuild your home (minus the deductible). Be aware that if you insure your home for an amount that is less than 80% of its value, some policies will consider you a co-insurer and you will be responsible for up to 20% of repair costs in the event of a loss.
- Check for discounts. Ask your agent for a list of discounts you may be eligible for, like an anti-theft device or FORTIFIED roof.
- Compare them all. Be sure to compare similar policies to learn which is the most reasonable and remember there are several different types of homeowners policies available.
- Keep in mind company underwriting. Companies have certain underwriting characteristics they use to determine eligibility. Some will look at such things as the condition of the home, if there is a pool, and the kinds of pets you have.

Tips on Loss Prevention

There are steps you can take to help prevent loss and keep your rates as low as possible:

- Install smoke and heat detectors near sleeping areas.
- Keep your house free of trash piles, oily rags and combustible materials.
- Check lamps, cords and light switches to make sure there is no faulty wiring.
- Practice fire drills at home, and make sure all family members (especially children) know what to do in case of a fire.
- Keep matches and lighters away from children.
- Do not smoke in bed.
- Install adequate locks on the doors and windows of your home.
- When away from home, suspend delivery on your mail and newspapers or ask a friend or neighbor to collect them for you daily.

Complaints

If you believe an insurance company has improperly refused to issue or renew your policy, or refused to pay all or part of your claim, you should first contact your insurer, then file a complaint if necessary.

Your first step should be to contact your adjuster, producer or other company representative. Many times a mistake has been made and will be corrected when you call. When making contact, be prepared to give your name, address, telephone number, policy number, type of policy and nature of your complaint.

If you do not receive a satisfactory response from your company, adjuster or producer, contact the Louisiana Department of Insurance at 1-800-259-5300. You can also visit the LDI online at ldi.la.gov for more information.
